Full Swing Ahead

Throughout the most intense Covid period, we at CBI tried our best to keep our congregation involved, often through trying circumstances. We scheduled services and programs to the extent possible, many of which were well received and attended.

Now, for the first time since, I can honestly say we are 'full steam ahead.' The frequency of successful services and events of the past months, and coming up in the near future, bears this out. Our building has truly been teeming with people in and out, as will hopefully be the case based on future plans.

A few highlights include -

- Havdalah Have Fun Night on February 25th attended by some 50 participants who, from all reports, loved it and want more
- Marvelous Mitzvot, Megilah, and Spiel Cabaret on March 6th with well over 100 delighted attendees
- Our ongoing monthly Adult Education Series: Nosh and Knowledge has seen the largest crowds in years, with recent presenters including our own CBI stars, Steve Federman, Dale Levy and Deborah Orloff
- Pesach Siyyum had 20 eager participants, and multiple Passover services were well attended despite all of them falling on weekdays
- We have enjoyed a record number of sponsored Kiddushim for many of our congregants' simchas, 'ken yirbu -- may they increase.' If you have an occasion to celebrate, why not contact Gabi and schedule a Kiddush?
- Our Women of CBI are to be commended for their ongoing series of monthly Rosh Hodesh events that are always of the highest caliber. No surprise they are so well attended and received, including their bi- monthly Book Club meetings.
- Although the Yom Hashoa Commemoration of April 16th, attended by some 150 people, and Yom Hazikaron of April 23rd are community/Federation events, we at CBI have been glad to host them in our beautiful building. Our building is most conducive for such events, and we hope to continue to host more. Our appreciation goes to our staff under Gabi, assisted by Kim, Rhoda, Larry, Karen, Debbie & Brandon, for their ongoing efforts to keep our building and events functioning at the highest level.

Two NOT TO BE MISSED upcoming events are the Spectacular Sephardic Shabbat Experience Scholar in Residence with world famous Sephardic Hazzan Ramon Tasat on Friday night and Shabbat morning and afternoon May 12-13th. There will be 3 events – Friday night @ 5:45 PM, Shabbat morning, and Shabbat afternoon @ 5:45 PM. Reservations for the delicious Sephardic dinner being generously prepared by our own Miriam Beckerman, are being taken now. We are indeed fortunate to be able to host Hazzan Tasat, and I assure you everyone will be enthralled. We are going to great trouble and expense to host him, and we look forward to your support of the program.

The other attraction is the Tikkun Shavuot on Thursday evening May 25th @ 5:45 PM. A special dairy dinner as is traditional on Shavuot is being planned with CBI member, Rebecca Swett who will conduct a cooking class with congregants. Our guest speaker will be the wonderful Prof. Yoni Miller from UT, whose topic will be, The Canonization of the Jewish Bible; Myth vs. Reality. Dr. Miller has accepted an appointment to the University of Connecticut and will be leaving us just days after Shavuot. This will be his swan song and your last chance to hear him live before he departs. Don't miss this opportunity!

I am also excited to announce that our '23 – '24 Adult Education series will kick off on Sunday, October 29th @ 10:30 AM with an exhibit of my own photography, entitled 'Splendid Synagogues of South Africa' including a PowerPoint lecture presentation. The exhibit, including almost 100 enlarged magnificent synagogue photos, is currently on its way to South Africa, where it will open on June 25th at the South African Jewish Museum in Cape Town, in memory of my dear late mother Miriam. Her matzevah tombstone will be unveiled the same day, at the conclusion of a year of Kaddish.

I look forward to seeing and greeting you at these upcoming events, which have all the promise of another vibrant year in CBI's long and storied history.

Shavuot Tikkun with Yoni Miller, Ph.D.

"The Canonization of the Jewish Bible: Myth vs. Reality"

Shavuot celebrates revelation at Mount Sinai, and from that foundational event, the Torah—the first five books of what would become the Jewish Bible—was revealed to the Israelite people. When the Jewish Bible later received its final shape, it was ultimately a collection of twenty-four books, with genres ranging from law codes to love poetry. But who chose these additional books for inclusion, and others for exclusion? Was there a formal process, and if so, when? Does there even need to be a Jewish biblical canon? This lecture will question old assumptions and provide fresh ways of thinking about how our "Book of Books" came into being.

What is Shavuot all about? Shavuot begins the evening of Thursday, May 25 through Saturday, May 27

The holiday of Shavuot celebrates the completion of the seven-week Omer counting period between Passover and Shavuot. The Torah was given by God to the Jewish people on Mount Sinai on Shavuot more than 3,300 years ago. Every year on the holiday of Shavuot we renew our acceptance of God's gift, and God "regives" us the Torah. In ancient times, two wheat loaves would be offered in the Holy Temple on Shavuot. It was also at this time that people would begin to bring "bikkurim", their first and choicest fruits, to thank God for Israel's bounty.

Why do we eat dairy on Shavuot? There are differences of opinion (some quite charming) as to why it is a custom.

Some derive the practice directly from Torah, saying we eat dairy to symbolize the "land flowing with milk and honey" (Exodus 3:8) promised to the Israelites, or that "milk and honey are under your tongue" (Song of Songs 4:11). These passages, along with "The precepts of the Lord are... sweeter than honey" (Psalm 19:9-11) also indicate we should eat honey, which is customary in some communities.

The initials of the four Hebrew words in Numbers 28:26, which describe the sacrificial meal offering on Shavuot, spell מחלב - 'mei-halav' (from milk), suggesting that dairy food is the acceptable meal for the festival. At Sinai, the Israelites were considered to be as innocent as newborns, whose food is milk.

Those of kabbalistic [mystical] bent equate the numerical value of the word "halav", 40 ('het'=8, 'lamed'=30, 'vet'=2), with the number of days Moses spent on Mount Sinai receiving the Ten Commandments and other teachings (Exodus 24:18). Others look to the mountain itself, which is termed in Psalms "mount of gavnunim" (68:15), meaning many peaks. They connect that description with the Hebrew word "gevinah", meaning cheese.

Scholars who trace all Jewish customs and rituals to practices common among various ethnic groups claim that spring harvest festivals characteristically featured dairy dishes, perhaps because cheese was produced during that season.

There is also support for the custom based on the spiritual development among the Israelites in the wake of Sinai. After the Torah was given, they were obligated to follow its laws, including those governing dietary practice. As they returned to the camp from Revelation, they could not eat the previously prepared meat, which had not been done according to the laws of kashrut [dietary restrictions]. Since preparing fresh meat would take too long for the tired, hungry Israelites, they took the dairy food that was readily available. Symbolizing modesty, dairy was also seen as appropriate for the occasion of receiving the Torah, which should always be approached with humility.

Notes from our Principal

Another successful school year is wrapping up. We have had numerous new events for our students this past school year. They had the opportunity to meet on Zoom with an incredible Jewish author from Chicago, who wrote books on how each one of us can make a difference in someone's life. Each student received a book prior to the Zoom meeting. The kids had insightful questions to ask and it made for an incredible morning.

All of our students were fortunate to get to know two amazing young Israelis, Yoav and Bnaya, during their three visits with our students this year. We hope to continue the Shin Shin program next year with all Toledo Religious School students.

Our students (grades 6 -10) had the wonderful opportunity to travel to Cleveland for the day with their peers from Shomer Emunim to tour the Maltz Museum of Jewish Heritage, see the home of the creators of Superman, and visit additional Jewish sights throughout Cleveland. This was made possible through a generous grant from Federation of Greater Toledo.

The last Sunday of the school year (May 7th), we are painting part of the shed at CBI's Sacred Grounds Garden. Sacred Grounds is a Garden for Wildlife program of the National Wildlife Federation, which encourages faith communities to create a wildlife habitat on their properties.

The Wallet

By Arnold Fine

- author of 'I Remember When', Jewish Press 1924-2014

Article reprinted from Reader's Digest, September, 1985

While walking one day, I stumbled across a wallet. I picked it up and looked inside, trying to find some identification so I could track the owner, but it held only three dollars and a crumbled letter that looked as though it had been in there for years. The envelope was worn, and the return address was the only thing legible. I opened the letter, hoping to find some clue, and I saw the date—1924.

It was written in a beautiful feminine handwriting, on powder blue stationary with a little flower in the left-hand corner. It was a "Dear John" letter, telling "Michael" that the writer could not see him anymore because her mother forbade it. Even so, she wrote that she would always love him. It was signed "Hannah."

Wanting to identify the owner, I decided to call information, hoping to find a phone number to match the address. The operator had me speak with her supervisor, who said she could not give me the number but would call it herself, and see if the person who answered would agree to speak with me. Minutes later, I was asking the woman on the other end of the line if she knew anyone named Hannah. She said she'd bought her house from a family who had a daughter named Hannah, but that was thirty years ago. "Would you know where that family could be located now?" I asked. She remembered that Hannah had placed her mother in a nursing home, and gave me the name of the home. The woman who answered the phone there told me the old woman had passed away, but they did have a number for where the daughter might be living. I thanked her and dialed the number she gave me. The woman who answered explained that Hannah herself was now living in a nursing home.

"This whole thing is stupid," I thought to myself. "Why am I making such a big deal over finding the owner of a wallet that has only three dollars and a sixty-year-old letter?" Nevertheless, I called the nursing home where Hannah was supposed to be living. The man who answered verified that she was there. Even though it was getting late, I drove over. The night nurse and a guard greeted me at the door and took me to the third floor of the large building. In the day room, the nurse introduced me to Hannah, a sweet, silverhaired lady with a warm smile and a twinkle in her eye.

I told her about finding the wallet and showed her the letter. The second she saw the powder blue envelope with the little flower, she took a deep breath and said, "Young man, this letter was the last contact I ever had with Michael." She looked away, deep in thought, and then said, "I loved him very much. But I was only sixteen at the time and my mother felt I was too young. Michael Goldstein was a wonderful person. If you should find, him, tell him I think of him often. In fact, tell him I still love him. You know," she said, smiling as tears welled up in her eyes, "I never did marry. I guess no one matched up to Michael."

I thanked Hannah and said goodbye. The guard at the front door asked, "Was she able to help you?" I told him she had given me a lead. "At least I have a last name. But I think I'll let it go for now. I've spent all day trying to find the owner of this wallet." I had taken out the wallet, a simple brown leather case with red lacing. When the guard saw it, he said, "Hey, wait a minute! That's Mr. Goldstein's wallet! I'd know it anywhere. He's always losing it on his walks. I've found it in the halls many times." My hands were shaking as I asked who Mr. Goldstein was and where he lived. I thanked the guard and ran back to the nurses station. We got on the elevator, headed for the eighth floor, and I was praying that Mr. Goldstein would still be awake.

The nurse took me to the day room, where a gentleman was reading. The nurse went over to him and asked if he has lost his wallet. She said, "This man found a wallet and we thought it might be yours." I handed him the wallet, and when he saw it, he smiled with relief. "I have something to tell you," I said. "I read the letter inside, hoping to find the owner. I think I know where Hannah is." He suddenly grew pale. "Hannah? You know where she is? Is she still as pretty as she was? Please, please tell me! You know something, mister? I was so in love with that girl that when that letter came, my life literally ended. I never married. I guess I've always loved her."

"Michael," I said, "come with me." We took the elevator down to the third floor. Nightlights lit our way down the hall to the day room, where Hannah was sitting alone, watching the television. The nurse walked over to her. "Hannah, do you know this man?," she asked softly, as she pointed to Michael, who was standing by me in the doorway. Hannah adjusted her glasses, looked for a moment, but said nothing. "Hannah," said Michael, "do you remember me?" She gasped. "Michael! My Michael! Is it really you?"

He walked slowly toward her, and they embraced. The nurse and I left with tears streaming down our faces. "See how the good Lord works," I said. "If it's meant to be, it will be." Three weeks later I got a call from the nursing home. "Can you break away on Sunday to attend a wedding? Michael and Hannah are tying the knot!"

It was a beautiful wedding. Hannah looked beautiful in her dress, and Michael stood tall and proud. They made me their best man. It was a perfect ending for a love affair that had lasted sixty years.

Roth Unbound, A Writer and His Books by Claudia Roth Pierpont

Claudia Roth Pierpont (no relation to Philip Roth) writes a critical evaluation of Philip Roth the first of its kind that takes on the man, the myth, and the work Philip Roth is one of the most renowned writers of our time. From his debut, Goodbye, Columbus, which won the National Book Award in 1960, and the explosion of Portnoy's Complaint in 1969, to his haunting reimagining of Anne Frank's story in The Ghost Writer ten years later, and the series of masterworks starting in the mid-eighties The Counterlife, Patrimony, Operation Shylock, Sabbath's Theater, American Pastoral, The Human Stain, Roth has produced some of the great American literature of the modern era. And yet there has been no major critical work about him until now. Here, at last, is the story of Roth's creative life. Roth Unbound is not a biography though it contains a wealth of previously undisclosed biographical details and unpublished material but something ultimately more rewarding: the exploration of a great writer through his art.

Overture of Hope by Isabel Vincent

Overture of Hope is "a secret aria of courage and suspense" written by an award-winning investigative journalist. This 2022 book about two sisters' daring plan that saved opera's Jewish stars from the third Reich.

"Schindler's List meets The Sound of Music in this amazing story of two British spinsters who spirited dozens of Jews from the world of German and Austrian opera to England on the eve of World War II. This book will resonate with fans of The Nazi Officer's Wife and The Dressmakers of Auschwitz."

Vividly narrated and based on original research, Overture of Hope is a gripping account of the wit, compassion, and hidden bravery behind one of the most dramatic and unlikely rescue missions of the Holocaust.

Have you visited the CBI Library Lounge?

We hope you will come in, sit, relax, and peruse some of our newest literary acquisitions during the hours that the synagogue is open. You are welcome to borrow any of these books, as long as you sign them out in our provided card box. For security purposes, please contact the office (419.517.8400) before you arrive.
